Excerpt: . . . so distinctly to understand to-day. 1 New York Herald, December 21, 1847, letter signed Tony Lumpkin. I had a Dinner party of 35 or 38 persons to-day, ladies and gentlemen. Among my guests were the Vice President of the U. S. and his family, the Speaker of the Ho. Repts. , the Secretary of the Senate, and clk. of the Ho. Repts. The balance of the company was composed of Senators and Representatives in Congress and their families. Both Houses of Congress adjourned over to-day until Monday next. FRIDAY, 24th December, 1847. --I received company as usual this morning. Many members of Congress and others called. At 12 OClock I closed my doors, but as neither House of Congress was in Session to-day, several members called after that hour and I received them. I received company in the parlour this evening. A large number of persons, ladies and gentlemen, members of Congress and others, called. About 9 OClock P. M. it was announced to me that Senator Fairfield of Maine had died to-night suddenly. He was an old and intimate friend, and as soon as the company dispersed I sent a servant to his boarding House to ascertain certainly if the fact was so. The servant returned and reported that he died at OClock this evening. The Secretary of the Navy left to-night on a short visit to his residence in Virginia. SATURDAY, 2th December, 1847. --This being Christmas day three or four members...
